WATERFRONT NEWS

MONGOLIA DUE HERE EARLY THIS FORENOON

The Pacific Mail steamship Mongolia is due here this morning from San Francisco. She is bringing a large mail and it is anticipated she will have a larger number of passengers for Honolulu than usual, as this steamer had some accommodations for passengers for this port, according to letters issued from General Passenger Agent Kerrell's office at San Francisco. In his answers to inquiries regarding chances for passage to Honolulu Mr. Kerrell has generally stated that all their steamers are booked up to February, except the Mongolia, and it is thought that Honolulu-bound passengers will form a big part of the list. Among those returning home are R. H. Trent, county treasurer, and Harold Dillingham, director of the 1910 floral parade.

Earl of Elgin Here.

The British steamer Earl of Elgin arrived late yesterday afternoon from Norfolk with coal for the naval station. The steamer is under orders to proceed to Mare Island to discharge cargo.

Spoke the Jean Bart.

The U. S. A. transport Dix at noon, December 19, spoke the French bark Jean Bart, headed for Portland from Dunkirk. The French vessel was then in Lat. 40:06 N., Long. 135:52 W. The vessel was in ballast.

Hilsonian Goes Tomorrow.

The Matson liner Hilsonian leaves for San Francisco at ten o'clock tomorrow morning, carrying the mails, some passengers and a good-sized cargo list. The cargo will include considerable raw and refined sugar, about 2000 bags of Kona coffee, a lot of bananas, rice, several thousand cases of canned pineapples and a very large number of crates of fresh pine.

Dix in Port.

Nine days after leaving Seattle, the army transport Dix arrived in port, and will probably leave for Manila tomorrow. The big steamer has five hundred and eleven horses and mules aboard for the Philippines. One mule died after leaving Seattle, and one horse is to be left here for one of the army majors stationed here.

The entire Hawaii exhibit at the Alaska-Yukon exposition was brought back on the Dix, in charge of Loyd Childs, who was in charge during the six months of the fair. The exhibit will be unloaded today and placed in the promotion committee rooms temporarily.

Captain Ankers expects to take on about 600 tons of coal today and tomorrow, and get off to the Philippines as soon as possible, for he has been delayed a couple of weeks already.

A railroad strike which practically tied up the railroads running out of St. Paul, all of which enter Seattle and Tacoma, delayed loading operations on the Dix, and for a time it was thought that recourse to enlisted men would have to be taken by the military authorities to get her cargo aboard.

Britishers Balk at Service.

A Britisher serving aboard one of the British vessels in port, commenting on the fact that all steamers, at least, used Chinese as deck and stokehold crews, states that the young men of Great Britain no longer show any desire to enter the merchant marine, particularly because the service does not hold forth any great reward for long and continuous service. The pay of small aboard steamers and sailing craft, and after serving twenty-five years or more he receives very little more money than when he started. "If it keeps on and the Chinese evince any aptitude for the work required on sailing ships," he added, "it wouldn't surprise me to find Chinese serving before the mast in a few years."

More Coal for Navy

The new British steamship Dunedin arrived yesterday morning at eight o'clock from Norfolk with coal for the naval station. The vessel tied up at the Channel wharf and is waiting for orders as to whether she will discharge cargo here or be ordered to Mare Island. When the pilot went out to the Dunedin yesterday it was thought the vessel was the British steamer Earl of Elgin, with navy coal. This vessel will receive orders to go to Mare Island.

The Dunedin was launched last June and has made only one voyage to Alexandria and Bombay, thence to Baltimore, where she received a charter from the United States government. Her cargo comprises 5113 tons of coal.

Reeves an Inspector.

L. B. Reeves has been appointed a night inspector of the customs force and will assume his duties today. He goes in on the civil service list owing to promotions and vacancies resulting from changes around the customhouse. Reeves has been a resident of Honolulu for many years. For about two years he was the waterfront police officer and a detective under Sheriff Iaukea, and did excellent work in clearing up petty thievery along the front.

Bad Weather at Pearl Harbor.

Owing to heavy southerly swells making work on the Pearl Harbor rather irksome, the big dredger California was towed into the harbor yesterday afternoon by the launch Huki Huki. When the weather calms down the dredger will be towed out again.

Bark Kaimani Sold.

The fine, big American bark Kaimani, which has been in the sugar-carrying trade off and on for many years, is reported to have been sold to the Alaska Packers' Association, along with the ship Hawaiian Isles. The Kaimani has been in port for many weeks undergoing repairs, particularly to her rudder post, this having been damaged in a hurricane in Australasian waters several months ago, when the vessel all but foundered. She is now taking on cargo and will be ready for sea early this week. This may probably be her last visit to Honolulu, as, if she has been disposed of to the Alaska Packers' Association, she will be placed in the coastwise trade. Local capital is interested in the Kaimani under the former owners.

Shipping Notes.

Considerable rainfall is reported on the Garden Isle.

The schooner Eva arrived at Mahukona on Thursday with lumber.

The sea along the Hamakua coast was reported very rough last week.

The S. S. Asgard was at Eleale discharging coal when the Kinau left.

The Ke Au Hou, arriving Saturday from Anahola, brought 3575 bags of sugar.

The Noeau, arriving at midnight Friday from Anahola, brought 865 bags of rice and sundries.

The Kinau brought from Kauai 4600 bags of K. S. M. sugar, 1015 cases pineapples, 83 cases honey.

The steamer Maui, arriving Saturday morning from Kawaihae, brought in fifty head of cattle.

The Mikahala's cargo list included 30 head cattle from the Molokai ranch, 22 crates chickens, 156 hogs.

The transport Sheridan is due here from Manila via Nagasaki about Monday or Tuesday of next week.

Purser Kaipo of the steamer Likelike reports that the Pauhanu plantation started grinding sugar last week.

The Ke Au Hou was unable to land a couple of rollers at Anahola last Friday on account of rough weather.

The Norwegian steamship Selja is due tomorrow from Yokohama with about 1500 tons of freight for this port.

Thursday is the date set for the arrival of the T. K. K. liner Nippon Maru from Yokohama for San Francisco.

The A. H. S. S. Virginian will remain in port until Tuesday before proceeding to Maui to complete her load of sugar.

The British steamship Masunda, which brought a cargo of coal from Norfolk for the naval station, may leave port today, having finished discharging.

The Mauna Kea's cargo from Hawaii included 12 crates turkeys, 13 crates chickens, 18 crates pigs, 200 sheep, 107 bales Jap. vegetables, 39 bags cabbage, 4 fern logs, 3 dogs.

Some time this forenoon the T. K. K. S. S. America Maru will arrive from South American ports, en route to Yokohama. She will make a short stay here, only long enough to take on oil.

The bar St. Katherine arrived at Hilo last Sunday, twenty-six days from San Francisco. The S. S. Enterprise arrived last Saturday. The schooner Kona sailed from Hilo last Wednesday in ballast for Port Townsend.

The American-Hawaiian S. S. Arizona arrived at Kahului yesterday, where she will remain until the thirtieth, loading sugar, when she will go to Kaaanapali, remaining there but one day, when she will leave for Santa Cruz.

CHRISTMAS ROBBERIES.

fused to prosecute, the holdup men go free. They had practically laid him out as he knew nothing whatever of what happened. He has a beautiful pair of black eyes as a souvenir of the occasion.

Junglaus a Victim.

Between the hours of three and four o'clock Christmas morning A. H. Junglaus, proprietor of the Palm Cafe, was relieved not only of all his valuables but all his clothes as well. These were removed from his room at the Hawaiian Hotel and he was compelled to await the arrival of another suit before he could leave the apartment. His clothing was later found in Corkscrew Alley, but not a trinket remained in the pockets. His loss included about $200 in cash, diamond sleeve links, a jeweled cravat pin, a gold watch and chain and keys. Considerable of the jewelry was recovered yesterday by Chief of Detectives McDuffie, and from some indications there will be no prosecution, but it is quite likely that a member of the Hotel street loafing gang will be tabued in future from further association with the membership.

Mr. Junglaus states that he left his store between two and three o'clock and went to the Hawaiian Hotel. He had been asleep about an hour when he was awakened and then discovered the loss of his clothing and trinkets. Junglaus' clothing was found early in the morning in Corkscrew Alley, that narrow, crooked, queer little lane which starts on Emma street and meanders through to Fort.

Christmas Day added but two names to the drunk list at the police station, those of M. Sorenson and M. Perry, arrested by Officers Kawaihoa and Kila.
